The Jess Docker Show By Harry Saks: After a successful run, The Pentameters Theatre announced before the show that it will bring the show back for a 3 week run in the new year from the 15th January 2013. The actors bring the show to life with thoughtful direction by Harry Saks. A full house enjoyed a thought provoking production and topical subject of a seedy chat show host who is lured to the flat of Tristan and Holly desperate to raise their profile in the world of art. The Jess Docker Show is the complete opposite of all they aspire to as low budget film making and writing team. Jess Docker is incipiently held against his will but strangely attracted to Holly in a tense but darkly humorous encounter which has twists and turns and witty annotations of the highs and lows of the fine lines of success and failure. This is a dark piece but an intriguing comedy that satisfies the curiosity of its audience. The performances are engaging and the plot is unpredictable with a clever, witty script. A fantastic venue with a regular theatre going audience. Celebrating 45 years and counting.
